Course Outline

Module 1: Federal Supervisors and Human Resources Management

- Explains the role of supervisors and managers in federal human resources management and their shared responsibilities with HR and agency leadership.
- Distinguishes between acquiring employees (recruitment, hiring, onboarding) and retaining employees (performance management, conduct, and engagement).
- Identifies common compliance risks and the consequences of improper HR actions, including grievances, appeals, and litigation.

Module 2: Framework for Federal Human Resources Compliance

- Introduces the Merit System Principles (MSPs) and how they guide fair and lawful personnel decisions.
- Explains Prohibited Personnel Practices (PPPs) and how supervisors can avoid violations.
- Reviews the legal foundations of federal HR management, including Title 5, the Code of Federal Regulations, and Executive Orders.
- Identifies the roles of key oversight agencies such as OPM, MSPB, EEOC, and FLRA.
- Uses case studies to help supervisors recognize compliance risks and decision points requiring HR consultation.

Module 3: Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Responsibilities for Supervisors

- Defines protected classes and prohibited forms of discrimination under federal EEO law.
- Distinguishes between disparate treatment and disparate impact.
- Explains harassment, hostile work environment standards, and supervisory responsibilities for prevention and response.
- Covers reasonable accommodation obligations related to disability and religious practices.
- Outlines the informal and formal EEO complaint processes and the supervisor's role in each.

Module 4: Labor-Management Relations and Supervisory Obligations

- Introduces bargaining unit concepts and the rights of management, employees, and unions.
- Explains impact and implementation (I&I) bargaining and when it is required.
- Identifies formal discussions and Weingarten meetings and the supervisor's responsibilities during each.
- Defines unfair labor practices (ULPs) and common supervisory actions that trigger violations.
- Provides practical guidance for avoiding common labor-relations mistakes.

Module 5: Risk Awareness and When to Seek Expert Guidance

- Identifies high-risk HR situations that require early consultation with HR, EEO, or Labor Relations.
- Reinforces the importance of documentation, consistency, and procedural compliance.
- Helps supervisors recognize when to pause action to prevent escalation, liability, or compliance violations.
